Description

This tool requires project participants to interview each other in order to discover the positive contribution and competences they are bringing to the collaboration. This tool can be a useful method for improving attitudes, awareness and communication where team members are struggling to work together effectively.

Objectives

- Helps to practice active listening skills
- Rediscovering & reorganising the good rather than problems
- Encouraging openness and reciprocity
- Encourages team to make use of each others competences
- Improving attitudes and collaboration
